I have been living in Zwoleń since the day I was born. This is where I resided throughout the last war. I saw how the Germans set up the ghetto, and I witnessed them taking the people gathered there – more than 10,000 – to Garbatka. I do not know what happened with them. I myself was afflicted by the War [...], for the Germans – Gestapo men – arrested my husband and brother. Both perished, executed in Zwoleń on 19 June 1943. The Germans forced people to gather and observe the shooting. My husband was an independence activist, and this is why he was arrested. The same goes for my brother. I witnessed and directly experienced mass round-ups of people who were later deported to the Reich. My son was also detained.

My husband and brother were turned in by a German, one Kula, who lived at Ms Flak's house. He was a Gestapo informer. I don't know what happened with him. I think he fled with the Germans. My husband was one of 43 people executed at the time; the majority were residents of Zwolen. Quite a few were from Janowiec. I was evicted only once, for a single day, while the Germans were busy killing and exterminating (burning) Jews on the grounds of the Jewish cemetery. I saw Jews being led for execution, and a Jewess among them. They were executed by gendarmes. When the front drew near, I fled from Zwolen, returning only after the city's liberation.
